Overseas Working Business – Strategic Themes –

- The strategic theme of the Overseas Working Business under the WILL-being 2029 medium-term management plan is to “strengthen profitability with a focus on productivity.”
- We aim to return to the stable profit levels achieved before the post-COVID-19 demand surge. To achieve this, we will improve productivity by leveraging our existing customer base and expertise, while rigorously managing earnings in light of exchange rate and policy fluctuation risks. We will also consider expansion into other countries and new business domains based on market potential and profitability, with the aim of establishing a stable earnings base that is less susceptible to changes in the market environment.

Overseas Working Business – KPI (Temporary staff on assignment (people)/Permanent placement with successful placement (people)) –

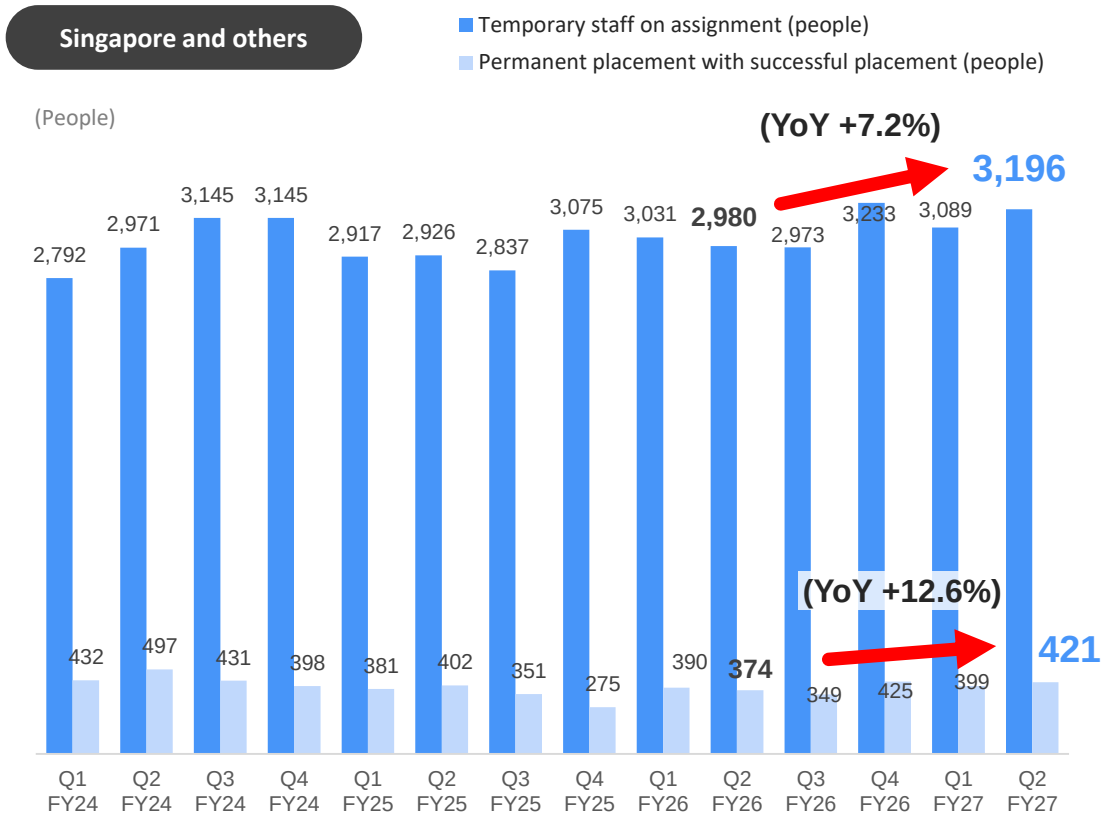

- In Australia, while the number of successful placements was sluggish due to continued weak demand for federal government-related recruitment process outsourcing services, sales productivity improved due to the optimization of personnel allocation and recruitment plans based on profitability.
- In Singapore and other regions, we focused on public-sector and IT-related projects, and both the number of temporary staff on assignment and the number of successful placements remained steady. Securing high-fee permanent placements and improving gross profit per contract staff member contributed to improvement of profitability.

Overseas Working Business – KPI (Gross profit to SG&A expenses ratio) –

- The gross profit to SG&A expenses ratio declined from FY2023 to FY2024 due to the waning of post-COVID-19 talent demand and the impact of accelerating inflation. However, due to resource allocation focused on profitability, control of SG&A expenses, and improvement in productivity, the ratio has been on a recovery trend since FY2025 and has remained within an appropriate range.
